

Panama exorcism terror rituals kill 7

AGENCIES
Panama City

Prosecutors in Panama said Thursday they have found the corpses of six children and one adult in a clandestine burial pit where a religious sect was found torturing indigenous people in exorcism rituals.

Prosecutors said the dead minors found in the pit ranged in age from one to 17, and that the adult was a pregnant woman who was the mother of five of the kids. The pit was found at a remote camp near the Caribbean coast where on Wednesday police arrested 10 members of an evangelical sect known as "The New Light of God." In that raid, police also freed 14 members of the Ngabé Buglé indigenous group who had been tied up and beaten with wooden cudgels and Bibles.

The Ngabé Buglé are Panama's largest indigenous group, and suffer from high rates of poverty and illiteracy.

It was not clear exactly what the rituals consisted of, but they appeared to involve some form of conversion and exorcism. Nor was it clear what belief or affiliations "The New Light of God" church has. A well-established evangelical church known as Luz del Mundo said in a press statement that it had no ties to those arrested.

Greece to elect first woman prez on January 22

AGENCIES / Athens

Greece will elect its first woman president on January 22 after leading opposition parties on Thursday approved the government's nomination of top judge Ekaterini Sakellaropoulou.

Main opposition leftist leader Alexis Tsipras said Sakellaropoulou was an "exceptional judge" and a defender of human rights.

The socialist KINAL party also said it would support the nomination of the 63-year-old current head of the Council of State, Greece's top administrative court.

PM Kyriakos Mitsotakis had announced Sakellaropoulou's candidacy in a surprise televised address.
